Release Date: 8 March 2026

1. Official Publication

Voices! Consultancy – Press Release

https://www.voicesconsultancy.com/Informes/Dia-Internacional-de-la-Mujer-Informe-WIN-Voices

Description:

Voices! Consultancy, Argentina's WIN member, published a national press release based on findings from the WIN 2026 survey, focusing on violence experienced by women. The Release highlights that Argentina ranks third globally among countries where women report having experienced physical or psychological violence in the past year, with 34% of Argentine women affirming such experiences — more than double the global average. The release also notes that 6 in 10 Argentine women do not feel safe walking alone at night in their neighbourhood. It contextualizes Argentina's position (behind Morocco and Indonesia) within broader societal dynamics around gender-based violence, institutional gaps, and the persistent divide between political discourse on gender equality and women's lived daily reality.

2. Media Coverage

2.1 La Nacion (National Newspaper)

https://www.lanacion.com.ar/sociedad/8m-las-mujeres-argentinas-en-el-tercer-puesto-global-por-haber-sufrido-violencia-fisica-o-nid07032026/

Description:

La Nacion, one of Argentina's leading national newspapers, covered the WIN 2026 survey findings in its Society section on 7 March 2026, the eve of International Women's Day. The article, authored by Sarah Mota, accurately presents Argentina's third-place global ranking in reported physical or psychological violence against women, noting that Morocco leads the ranking followed by Indonesia.

The piece situates the findings within concerns about gender inequality across the Latin American region, reaching La Nacion's wide national readership of policy-oriented and general audiences.

2.2 Ambito (National Financial & Political Newspaper)

Dame Noticias, a national digital news platform, reported on the international survey findings indicating that the proportion of Argentine women reporting recent violence doubles the global average. The article presents the data accessibly for a mass online audience and links the findings to ongoing national conversations about gender-based violence and institutional responses.

3. Use of WIN Data in Argentina

The WIN 2026 survey data was actively utilized in Argentina through:

- Development of a national press release contextualizing global findings on gender-based violence
- Dissemination across national, regional, and digital media outlets spanning the entire country
- Integration into discussions on:
    - Gender inequality and the gap between discourse and lived reality
    - Physical and psychological violence against women
    - Argentina's third-place global ranking in violence prevalence
    - Women's perceptions of personal safety in public spaces
    - Social and policy implications for national and provincial governments

The findings contributed significantly to public discourse around the 8M (International Women's Day) commemorations, demonstrating effective localization and application of cross-country survey insights to the Argentine context.

4. Reach and Impact

The release achieved broad national visibility:

- Coverage across 11 media outlets (1 official release + 11 media articles)
- Representation across:
    - National print and digital media (La Nacion, Ambito)
    - National digital news portals (Mundo Poder, Dame Noticias, Info Dia a Dia)
    - Regional political and analytical media (Latinoamerica 21)
    - Provincial digital journalism: Entre Rios (El Once, Diario El Argentino), Chaco (Data Chaco),

Misiones (Enfoque Misiones), Patagonia (Critica Sur)

This ensured wide dissemination of WIN findings across diverse audience segments and geographic regions in Argentina, from national policy-oriented readerships to mass digital and provincial audiences.

The consistency and accuracy of media reporting indicate strong alignment with the original Voices! Consultancy release and effective communication of WIN survey findings. The topic's resonance —particularly around the 8M date — led to meaningful engagement across media platforms nationwide, reinforcing the importance of gender-based violence as a critical societal issue in Argentina and the value of internationally comparable data in driving that public conversation.
